1. Overview

1.1. Purpose of the Guide

The purpose of this guide is to outline the steps needed to create and set up 360 reviews on the talent dashboard to be assigned to employees and managers for feedback.

1.2. What are 360 Reviews?

360 reviews are feedback opportunities that enable a group of colleagues to provide feedback on an employee's performance and facilitate continuous evaluation. Talent management administrators can create 360 review questionnaires and assign these either to all employees across the organisation or to employees that belong to a specific organisational group, e.g. all employees in Division A. Employees can select from a list of the colleagues, within their defined organisational group, and request that they provide feedback for them, using the assigned 360 review form.

The feedback is generally asked for by the manager to whom the employee reports into. Colleagues who participate in the 360 usually include the persons line manager, several peers, reporting staff, and functional managers with whom the employee works regularly with.

The goal of the feedback is to provide a balanced view to an employee of how others view his or her contribution and performance in areas such as leadership, teamwork, interpersonal, communication, management, contribution, work habits, interpersonal interaction, accountability, vision and more, depending on the employee's job.

Key characteristics of the 360 review include:

- Availability to assign and request feedback for a specific period.
- Visibility of feedback can be set for HR, the manager and the employee; therefore controlling who has access to review submitted feedback.
- The anonymity of feedback can be set for HR, the manager and the employee hiding the name of the employee who provides feedback.
- Review questionnaires can be created unique to each review, with the facility to define a number of mandatory or optional questions using multiple choice & free text style answers.

- Notifications are automatically issued via the CorePortal notification centre to alert employees of:
 - any new 360 reviews they need to assign to their colleagues.
 - any feedback requests that have been assigned to them from their colleagues.
- System reminders can be enabled to automatically send to employees within up to 7 days of the review due date, as a reminder to act on any outstanding review requests.

1.3. What are Peer Reviews

The Peer Review functionality allows a manager to send a review questionnaire to other employees in the organisation and to request feedback from their team members. Talent management administrators can create peer review questionnaires and assign these either to all managers across the entire organisation or to managers that belong to a specific organisational group, e.g. all managers in Division A.

Key characteristics of the peer review include:

- The availability to assign and request feedback for a specific period.
- The visibility of feedback can be restricted for either HR, the manager or both.
- The anonymity of feedback provided can be set to hide the name of the employee who provides feedback.
- Review questionnaires can be created unique to each review, with the facility to define a number of mandatory or optional questions using multiple choice & free text style answers
- Notifications are automatically issued via the CorePortal notification centre to alert:
 - managers of any new peer reviews they need to assign for their team members.
 - employees of any feedback requests assigned to them.
- System reminders can be set to automatically send to employees within up to 7 days of the review due date, as a reminder to act on any outstanding review requests
- An employee cannot view feedback provided about them via the peer review process. This feedback is visible only to their manager and to the talent management administrator.
