1. Overview

1.1. Purpose of the Guide

 Note This guide is only applicable if an organisation is managing the assignment of pension schemes for employees at contract level, rather than person level. Please refer to the relevant Payroll training resources for guidance on managing pension scheme assignments at employee level.

This document provides guidance on how to manage pension schemes for employees by directly assigning these to their contract records. This includes:

- Linking pension schemes to post profile records.
- Assigning a pension scheme to contracts.
- Amending existing pension scheme assignments.
- How the assignment of a pension scheme is ended.
- The payslip impact of the 'Pension by Appointment' option.

This document does not provide guidance on how to manage pensions schemes for employees at employee level.

1.2. Pension by Appointment vs Pension by Person

CoreHR provides the facility to capture Pension Scheme assignments for employee at either Person or Appointment level. An organisation will configure the CoreHR application to manage pensions using either of these options. Only one option can be enabled at a time. It is not possible to define a combination of these options

1.2.1. Pension by Person

Pension Schemes are assigned directly to the employee's record.

- This is managed in Payroll and not in HR.
- This is completely independent of the employee's assigned contracts i.e. contract amendments, new contracts etc. will not impact on the pension scheme assignment.

 Note If this option is used, the Pension Contributions screen will be read-only. This means that the screen:

- will display the details of any pension assigned to the person.
- will not provide the ability to update or amend the pension assignments, regardless of the menu options assigned to the user.

1.2.2. Pension by Appointment

Pension Schemes are assigned directly to an employee's contract.

- Different pension schemes can be assigned to different contracts.
- If an employee has multiple active contracts, it is possible to have pension schemes assigned to all or some of these.
- If a contract is ended, the pension scheme assignment is also automatically ended.

2. How to Use

2.1. Post Profile Pension Schemes

In order for a Pension Scheme to be linked to an employee's contract, the scheme must first be linked to the Post Profile. Only Pension Schemes that are linked to a Post Profile will be available in People Management to you to select for the employee's Post Appointment/Contract. If a Pension Scheme is not linked to the Post Profile, it will not be available in People Management to link to the employee's Post Appointment/Contract.

- The pension scheme end date will be the same as the contract end date.
- If an assigned pension scheme already has an End Date applied, this will not be updated.

The pension scheme assignment is automatically ended when:

- A contract is ended via the End Contract option on the Contracts screen i.e.

- An employee is made a leaver i.e. via the Process As Leaver option i.e.

UPDATE COMMENT

- All pension schemes that are currently active linked to the contract being ended will display here. If a pension scheme was previously assigned to the contract and the End Date is earlier than the Date Left, this will not appear here, as it does not need to be ended by this activity.
- The End Date may appear as blank. This implies that the Pension Scheme assignment is currently active.
- If the Pension Scheme already has an End Date defined, this will display on screen. This end date will be effectively replaced with the new Date Left (if that Date Left is greater than the end date on the Pension Scheme).
